

ChemicalInfo Named Winner at DFW Torch Awards for Ethics 2017

The award was sponsored by the Better Business Bureau Serving North Central Texas Dallas Business Journal

DALLAS, October 12, 2017 - ChemicalInfo, providers of the most comprehensive online databases for chemical and pharmaceutical companies and those who do business with them, has been named a winner in the small category of the DFW Torch Award for Ethics. The Torch Awards sponsored by the Better Business Bureau Serving North Central Texas and Dallas Business Journal evaluated organizations based on integrity and ethics in business dealings, education, business-to-business recommendations, customer service and other criteria.

As the winner in the small category, ChemicalInfo shared its drive for all employees to adopt its core values, Ownership, Trust, Commitment and Fun every day and to nominate their peers to that exemplify these values. At the end of the quarter the employee with the most nominations becomes the Employee of the Quarter and receives recognition and monetary compensation.

“As CEO, it’s my job to ensure that our company meets business and revenue goals as well as foster the culture of the business. Our core values drive everything from selecting our Employee of the Quarter winner, to driving our product roadmap based on our commitment to continually support our customers,” said Ernie Cote, CEO at ChemicalInfo. “At ChemicalInfo we believe you can’t operate a business without Ownership, Trust and Commitment to your coworkers, shareholders and most importantly your clients and that is why we are so honored to be selected as the Torch Award for Ethics winner in our category.”
